

Carolin Schönemann | Working student

Verification systems - Certification - Green electricity

Carolin Schönemann specialises in verification systems, certification and green electricity at Hamburg Institut. She focuses in particular on regulatory issues. She is also writing her Master's thesis in cooperation with us, in which she is analysing the EU's Renewable Energy Directive III (RED III).

Carolin Schönemann is currently studying Public Economics, Law and Politics in the Master's programme at Leuphana University in Lüneburg. She also works as a student assistant at Norddeutscher Rundfunk and has already completed an internship at the EU Liaison Office of the ver.di Federal Administration.

Consultancy and research focus

- Regulatory Affairs
- Verification systems
- Certification
- Green electricity

Qualification and career

Since 2024	Working student at Hamburg Institut
Since 2022	M.A. Public Economics, Law and Politics , Leuphana University, Lüneburg
Since 2022	Student Assistant , Norddeutscher Rundfunk, Hamburg
2022	Intern , EU Liaison Office, ver.di Federal Administration
Since 2019	Teamer , State Centre for Political Education, Magdeburg
2019 – 2022	B.A. European Studies , Otto von Guericke University Magdeburg